Things to Consider

- All animals will need to be returned to the FKSPCA at the end of the foster period.
- Animals brought into your own home may have contagious diseases that can infect your own animals, if exposed.
- We will need frequent updates from you, by phone or email, throughout the foster period.
- Consider that foster animals often have behavioral issues that need to be corrected and may, for a time, be destructive.
- Would your work schedule allow you to take home animals which may require medication? Or to take trips to your veterinarian for appointments?
- Some foster candidates may need a foster home for up to several months.

READ THE POLICY STATEMENT CAREFULLY

I confirm that all information supplied on this profile is true and correct. I also understand that foster training will be provided for me before I am able to begin fostering animals for the FKSPCA. I understand that the Florida Keys SPCA is not responsible for any property or personal damage or wounds inflicted or illnesses caused by the foster animal(s).

Thank you for joining the Foster Care Program!
